Economics as News

A supplement to
History of Political Economy (vol. 55)

Tiago Mata, issue editor

This special supplement covers the origins of journalism about economics from the combined perspectives of history and sociology. From reporting on the South Sea Bubble to contemporary controversies about Chile's political economy, these essays examine how practices and cultures shape the adoption of economic ideas as news and economists as news personalities. The essays also include testimonies by practicing economic journalists about their careers and vocation.

Contributors: Paul Blustein, Peter Coy, Roei Davidson, Julien Duval, Evelyn L. Forget, Manuel Gárate, Chris Giles, Maria Grafström, Tiago Mata, Paul Charles Milazzo, Tomás Undurraga, David Warsh, Carl Wennerlind
